People in Darfur desperately need the help of the international community. The contributors to this volume provide a valuable background to the conflict, an analysis of the present situation and suggest various non-violent ways of solving the crisis, from democratization of the Sudan as a long-term solution, expanding the operational capacity of the African Union troops to instigating a grass roots peacemaking process by means of intertribal reconciliation negotiations at all levels.

The definitive analysis, instigated by the Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies, of the Darfur conflict, with policy recommendations for governments and international agencies
