Iridology is the science and practice of studying patterns in the iris of the eye to understand a person's genetic characteristics. This can include identifying physical, emotional, and mental health predispositions. Iridology is an invaluable tool for massage therapists, physiotherapists, chiropractors, nurses, natural and holistic health practitioners, energy healers and anyone involved in the health and well-being of others. Upon successful completion of this Course you will be able to: Identify various signs and markings in the iris and what they may mean for the client. Demonstrate knowledge of the signs present in the iris. Identify potential health challenges the person is genetically predisposed to and may be experiencing. This course opens the door to a rewarding career in the Natural Health Field. You will learn about lifestyle changes to help yourself and others lead a healthier and happier life.
